Domestic Inquiry - Procedure & Legal Aspects

Resource Person

Date

10th August 2018 (Friday)

Venue

Lissie Junction, Kaloor, Ernakulam,

Background of Workshop

Disciplinary proceeding is better known as domestic enquiry. The very word DOMESTIC implies that the inquiry can be conducted by internal artistes/employees who need not be qualified WITH LAW DEGREES. Therefore the major roles of: Enquiry/Presiding Officer, Presenting/Prosecution Officer, Punishing Authority and Appellate Authority are all to be performed by internal employees. If the management deploys a legally qualified Presenting Officer, the charge-sheeted employee will acquire the corresponding right to insist on being defended by a legally qualified person/advocate.

The judicial precedents also require that the Presiding/Inquiry Officer should be a neutral person who must not have a vested interest in the outcome of the inquiry. To meet these requirements it is desirable not to have an officer from the same department from where the complaint arose or a line superior of the complainant as the inquiry officer.

Further dependence on external inquiry officer causes considerable delay/waste of employee down time in the completion of the enquiry, besides if an enquiry is improperly conducted, the courts may set aside the dismissal order and order reinstatement with huge amounts as back wages and loss of face for the management in addition to huge expenditure on lawyer's fees as well.

Therefore it is imperative that every organization should have at least one Line Manager from each department be trained in the art and science of conducting domestic enquiries.
